INTRODUCTION

JOHN THOMSON, Librarian of the Free Library of Philadelphia from 1894 to 1916, suggested the compilation of a catalogue of the Fifteenth Century Books in America, and he directed the preparation of the larger part of the material upon which this Census is based. He did not see the completion of the task which he initiated, but it is his name which ought to be associated with this volume more than that of any other individual.

The idea came as a result of the gift of the incunabula collected by W. A. Copinger to the H. Josephine Widener Branch of the Philadelphia Library, in 1898. The cataloguing of the Copinger books was entrusted to Miss Edith Brinckmann, and in connection with that work she began to correspond with other libraries, requesting their co-operation in the proposed undertaking. At about the same time and perhaps as a result of Mr. Thomson's enquiries, C. Alexander Nelson, Reference Librarian of Columbia University, collected data for a union list of incunabula in the libraries of New York City.

Students of early printing at that time needed more than anything else detailed descriptions of the widely scattered copies of books which it was suspected might vary from those of similar editions for which the data were available. Miss Brinckmann began to prepare a catalogue which would furnish all the desired information about each copy of every title that was registered, but the magnitude of the task soon led to modifications in the plan. The number of these books was found to be much larger than had been anticipated, and it became evident that it would be impossible to secure anything approaching uniform descriptions of them without personal examination by the compilers of the catalogue. The cost of this was obviously not justified by the relative importance of the results. It was almost equally difficult to induce collaborators to agree upon the form or the amount of the information to be given. The time which would be required to complete the catalogue in a satisfactory manner, as well as the inevitable cost of producing the publication, began to impress those whose support had been counted upon. These considerations nevertheless made the importance of the work more apparent. It was certain to prove useful to scholarship in America, and was of too much prospective value to be allowed to lapse, although it was too large a scheme to be handled by any one public library.

The earliest report of the progress of the work was made by Lorin Blodget, jr., on October 31, 1899. This states that 30 libraries and private owners had sent in 879 titles, and that 14 other collections had promised to furnish lists. On June 10, 1902, the numbers had grown to 33 libraries and 20 private owners, reporting 2,417 titles. There were 6 new names on the lists and 71 additional titles on December 22, 1905. "Titles" in each of these reports apparently represents separate copies, whether or not duplicated in other collections. Elsewhere in this introduction the distinction is made between the title or distinct edition of a publication, and the copy or copies which may be registered for each title entry. The figures for the Census as now printed are, approximately, 169 public and 246 private collections, reporting over 13,200 copies of more than 6,640 titles.

The Bibliographical Society of America held its first meeting at St. Louis on October 18, 1904. The printed statement issued shortly thereafter announces that the Council of the Society at its initial meeting on October 20 "decided that the first publication of the Society should be 'A List of the Incunabula in American Libraries,' a large part of the material for which has already been collected in Philadelphia, under the direction of Mr. Thomson. The preparation and printing of the same was assigned to a special committee consisting of Messrs. John Thomson, of Philadelphia, and G. W. Harris, of Cornell University." Clarence Sears Kates, whose suggestion had led to securing the Copinger Collection for America, was added to the committee at the request of Mr. Thomson, who also promised to continue the services of his staff in preparing the material for the press. A specimen page was put in type, and estimates secured of the cost of printing.

The ensuing discussions and correspondence elicited various alternative proposals, both as to the form of the title entries and the distribution and financing of the printed work. Of all this, the letter which now calls for record was written by Wilberforce Eames of The New York Public Library, on Nov. 21, 1905, embodying a suggestion which had developed during a conference with the President of the Society, William Coolidge Lane of the Harvard Library, "that we issue a short title checklist of Fifteenth Century Books in America." The form in which the Census now appears and the printing of it by The New York Public Library are the fulfillment of the suggestions in this letter.

Mr. Thomson, besides co-operating with the officers of the Society in the effort to find means for financing the publication, continued to direct the accumulation of data and the editing of the entries for printing. Steady progress was made by Miss Brinckmann and her successor, in 1909, Miss Margaret W. Righter. Typewritten copy for the letters A-C was ready for the compositor, and the card entries were revised for the copyists up to the letter H, when it was decided to transfer the further work on the publication to the Society. The material was deposited at the Newberry Library, in Chicago, until 1916, when it was placed in the Harry Elkins Widener Library at Harvard. There seemed to be no immediate prospect of printing the list, and the accumulated data were held by these libraries for the use of students, Mr. Carlton at Chicago and Mr. Winship at Cambridge undertaking to answer reasonable enquiries concerning the information embodied in the files.

George Watson Cole, who became President of the Society at the meeting held at Asbury Park, June 29, 1916, has brought this undertaking to completion. The Director of The New York Public Library, Mr. Edwin H. Anderson, upon the recommendation of H. M. Lydenberg, Chief Reference Librarian, and Victor H. Paltsits, Chief of the American History Division and Keeper of Manuscripts, undertook to print the list in the Library's monthly Bulletin, in which it appeared in nine instalments in the issues for April to December, 1918. The cost of the clerical work and of incidental expenses was met by subscriptions, aggregating $2,100, contributed by Mr. Cole, Dr. Charles L. Nichols, Archer M. Huntington, Henry E. Huntington, George D. Smith, Charles W. Clark, jr., and Arnold B. Tompkins. Mr. Winship undertook to supervise the preparation of copy for the printer and to read the proof, supported by an editorial committee, of which the other members were Mr. Cole, Dr. Nichols, and Mr. Paltsits.

The actual work of transcribing all the entries in the form decided upon, making a clean copy for the compositor, verifying references and corresponding with contributors in regard to doubtful matters, was done by Maude E. C. Covell. To Mrs. Covell and Miss Brinckmann every user of this publication is under obligations for the relatively high degree of accuracy which the editor hopes that it may prove to possess. Second only to the debt due them is that due to Mr. D. C. Haskell, who, in the editorial room of The New York Public Library, read copy and proof, and detected many inconsistencies and some mistakes.

The proof was seen by George W. Robinson of Harvard, Dr. Arnold B. Klebs, Charles Martel of the Library of Congress, Dr. Alexander Marx of the Jewish Theological Seminary, Dr. Joseph Martini and Wilfrid M. Voynich, each of whom gave much helpful assistance. It was not possible in every case to adopt their suggestions, and they must not be held responsible for the work as it is printed. Mr. Robinson corrected a number of dates which had been copied from publications thought to be reliable. Dr. Klebs contributed the results of his researches in the field of medical history. Dr. Marx revised the Hebrew titles and references.

The agreement with The New York Public Library provided that the inevitably heavy cost of printing should be kept as low as might be, without impairing accuracy or usefulness. This Census aims to be nothing more than a guide to investigators, showing where these widely scattered volumes, of which a large proportion are in places where one would not expect to look for them, may be consulted. This fundamental purpose should be kept in mind by those who have occasion to examine it. It does not attempt to give any information except what is essential to its purpose. The titles and references are intended to be sufficient to identify the book located; they can not safely be used except as a guide by library cataloguers, booksellers, or collectors.

The technical, typographic data which are essential for purposes of identification when dealing with early printed books, must be looked for elsewhere.

Students of the history of printing have appropriated fifteenth century publications so largely for their special researches during several decades that the possessors of these volumes, public institutions as well as private collectors, have been apt to forget that the contents interest scholars in other fields of study, — electricity and therapeutics, as well as linguistics or theology. In editing the entries for the Census an attempt has been made to redress this bias by keeping in mind the fact that it will be used by many who know nothing about early typography.

The effort to do this was easier because the present is, for students of fifteenth century typography, a period of transition from one distinctly characterized period to another that promises to be as clearly defined and as fruitful in discoveries and deductions. What is likely to become known as the period of Proctor's Index has passed, and professional bibliographers are now feeling their way toward the next stage. The definite starting point for future studies will be the General Catalogue of Fifteenth Century Books which the Kommission für den Gesamtkatalog der Wiegendrucke has compiled. The disposition of the material prepared by the Kommission, after Peace is established, is a relatively insignificant matter that concerns all who are interested in humanistic scholarship. Until it is published no one can do any confident work of importance in this field.

The general considerations that have been kept in mind while this Census was passing through the press, which govern its contents and arrangement, are, in brief:

The TITLE ENTRIES follow the order of Hain's Repertorium, with those titles not known to Hain interpolated as nearly as may be in the same system. The number is that of Hain. This number has been the standard for identification for nearly a century, and it serves, also, through their indices, as a reference number for those titles that are in Proctor's Index, the British Museum Catalogue of Fifteenth Century Books, and, for a large proportion of the numbers without an asterisk, to the first volume of Copinger's Supplement to Hain and Reichling's Appendices ad Hainii-Copingerii, Emendationes. Hain's asterisk is placed after, instead of before, the figures, in order to get an even line down the page.

The AUTHORS' NAMES are spelled ordinarily as they appear in Hain. Alternative forms are given when it seemed desirable, either because another form is now recognized as the correct spelling or because the differing forms are likely to mislead persons unfamiliar with mediaeval habits of nomenclature. Cross references are given where libraries reporting a title, or the books consulted, place it under a different heading.

The ALPHABETICAL ORDER is that of Hain. No attempt is made to improve this or to adapt it to the cataloguing rules now current. These rules, carefully prepared in accordance with logical principles, would locate Aquinas amid a host of other Thomases, and lose Kempis under Haemmerlein. Doubtless this is where they ought to be put in any work that aspires to permanence or hopes to influence the average of public information. Nevertheless it did not seem wise to adopt these rules for this compendium, which ought to be replaced in a decade and which aims merely to be useful to as many persons as possible during that interval. An incidental reason for not embarking upon a rearrangement of the long-familiar order was the fact that the authorities consulted did not agree on some fundamental points.

The TITLE of the original work is entered in the fewest words that will identify it and give a hint of its subject matter. It was found that much confusion has been caused by Proctor's short titles, and that those given by Hain are almost as misleading, on account of the fact that in many cases neither coincides precisely with any wording that can be found in a copy of the work to which they are applied. As there is no agreement among the authorities as to the proper designation for many of these works, the attempt to follow any one of them was given up. The rule adopted for doubtful cases was to introduce into the entry some words in the form in which they appear in the original edition, so that an owner unfamiliar with bibliographies may have this much in common between the entry and his book, — unless the latter happens to lack the leaf from which the words are taken.

An advantage of giving a few words in the exact form of the original publication, when this is in a vernacular language, is that this makes it unnecessary to select the proper designation for the language in question, at a time when languages like nearly everything else were in a stage of transition. When put to test, it was found that a student familiar with related dialects was able to get a definite impression from a few peculiarly spelled words more satisfactorily than from any statement that the book in question was from a particular kind of German, Italian, or Spanish.

The PLACE where the original edition was printed is given in the common English form, because the place is a matter of interest to many to whom the Latin form of the name is meaningless and who are not apt to have at hand the means for finding the modern equivalent.

The PRINTER'S NAME follows that of the place, a concession to the typographic aspect. The frequent use made of Proctor's arrangement of titles under the heading of the printer's name, by booksellers and libraries, made this desirable. The name is spelled ordinarily as it appears in the original, so that it may be used as a check on the identity of copies. This made it necessary in many cases to add, in parentheses, the name by which the same individual is usually referred to, and by which he can be found in Burger's index of printers and their publications in Copinger's third volume. As soon as Burger's list is replaced by a comprehensive dictionary, giving in alphabetical order each of the names which these printers used in signing their productions, one of the sources of confusion in gathering material for a new edition of this Census will be eliminated.

The DATE is given in the Roman or the ecclesiastical style, as in the original, with the modern equivalent in parentheses, in order to obviate the confusion introduced by Proctor, followed by Reichling in his indices, and continued by other cataloguers for no evident reason. Proctor had a definite and important purpose, which was to find out as nearly as possible the precise order in which each printer worked on the various publications that came from his press. This same purpose controls the otherwise irritating arrangement of the British Museum Catalogue, in which Proctor's colleagues and successors are carrying out the very fruitful work which he began, following the guidance of Henry Bradshaw. The dated books can be found more conveniently in Burger's index of printers, which is more comprehensive than Proctor, but does not attempt the careful verification of data by which undated works can be placed in their chronological sequence, which characterizes the British Museum Catalogue. As soon as the General Catalogue appears a new list will have to be prepared, embodying the latest conclusions of those who have investigated these details. Until the time comes for this there is not the least use in translating the date of publication. The date, beyond the year, is not in itself important, except as a convenient means of identification.

It is a curious scholastic tragedy which made Robert Proctor's Index, in which the full date is a fundamental characteristic, the vade mecum of all sorts of book collectors and book sellers for more than a quarter century. He printed it as a preliminary essay, at what should have been the beginning of his career, in order that something of permanent value might be worked out from it. No work ever deserved more fully the fame that came to it, and it is doubtful whether any other tentative attempt at rearranging the intellectual activity of half a century was ever more trustfully used by so many people, who accept it as a comprehensive bibliography, and do not realize that it includes only the books seen by Proctor in London and Oxford.

The REFERENCE entries presuppose that those who use the Census would be confused rather than helped by the repetition, under nearly every number, of the principal works in which fifteenth century books are described. It is assumed that those who have access to these or to other special treatises in this field will consult them whenever they want to find out about one of these books. It would have doubled the size of the Census to reprint the obvious references which can be found as conveniently in other catalogues. This would have increased much more the labor and the likelihood of misprints without adding essentially to the usefulness of this publication. It would not, in the opinion of the committee, have saved in the aggregate as much time as the verification of figures and the proofreading would have taken. Reference is made to the British Museum Catalogue and to other works whenever these provide information of literary or historical import, or when there seemed to be some reason for bringing them to the notice of scholars whose studies do not ordinarily make them familiar with the contents of technical bibliographical works. One such, who has sought for many years to locate an undated edition of his favorite author in its proper place in the sequence of texts, is still puzzled, and not wholly convinced, by the confidence with which it is assigned herein to the late autumn of a given year.

The bibliographies of individual localities or of printers are not referred to, for similar reasons. It seemed unnecessary to repeat the name of Voulliéme, Renouard, Macfarlane, or Redgrave each time that the title entry gives Cologne, Aldus, Vérard, or Ratdolt. A list of the books and essays about the individual printers, with references to places where there is useful information about those who have not yet been made a subject for separate publication, is one of the desiderata much needed by amateurs in this field to supplement the titles arranged under the names of places in Peddie's invaluable little Guide to the identification of Fifteenth Century Books.

The ABBREVIATIONS adopted for the names of owners of copies reflect the economies of space and type-metal imposed by war-time conditions, as well as the even shorter forms which appear in the preliminary lists made when this work was in its earlier stages. The familiar designations for some of the larger collections were abandoned because the repetition of the L for each library made the line of letters much less clear. Private owners are designated by their initials, with an additional letter in the few cases where a second owner appeared with the same initials as another already entered. Public institutions are given an abbreviation in which one or more lower case letters occur. The only exceptions are NYP and LC, both too well established to be altered.

In the first plans for this list "America" included the western hemisphere. This made it possible to describe the treasures of the library acquired by Brazil from the former emperor, to which might have been added easily a number of titles from the printed catalogues of a few Mexican, Argentine and Chilean collections. These, however, represent a negligible proportion of the volumes which exist in the Spanish and Portuguese Americas, and they can scarcely be regarded as within the range of use by those for whom the Census is issued. Canadian collections are included and a number of important titles contributed.

No attempt has been made to note defects in copies except where they are known to contain only a small portion of the complete work. The data from which the Census has been compiled contain a considerable amount of detailed information concerning the condition, as well as the binding of individual copies, which would have increased the value of this list, if it had been possible to distinguish the copies which were known to have been collated by someone competent to report their condition from the larger number of others which may or may not be perfect.

A PROVENANCE for the copy reported is given in parentheses following the abbreviation of ownership. The importance of this was not recognized until after the earlier sheets had gone through the press and when it was too late to revise many of the later entries. The parentheses refer in most cases to the catalogue of an auction sale in which the copy is described. Various considerations made it impracticable to include references to the much more satisfactory descriptions that appear in the printed catalogues of the booksellers, to whom the Census is under deep obligations for much generous assistance. Particular mention is due Walter M. Hill, Joseph Martini, A. S. W. Rosenbach, George D. Smith, and Wilfrid M. Voynich.

Copies whose present whereabouts are not known are noted in a number of cases. Most of these are taken from the record of auction sales, the entry in parentheses being the name given to the sale by the auction catalogue. This convenient means of reference must not be considered as evidence that the book mentioned actually belonged to the person whose name is used, on account of the practice, sometimes legitimate, of adding to a library after it passes into the auctioneer's hands.

Efforts were made to trace some of these lost titles when no other copy of the volume had been reported or when the form of the entry or the description of the volume raised suspicions. Several "ghosts" were laid, but the results on the whole did not justify the time taken, and it seemed fairer to relegate this search to those whose desire to see the book in question gives the necessary incentive to pursue it in spite of difficulties. The hunt on behalf of the Census ceased after a personal search through the shelves of a library confirmed the owner's assurance that he did not have and had never seen a volume, although the auctioneer's account books showed that he had paid for it.

In every case where information was asked for, the officials of the various salesrooms gave all the assistance they could without violating confidences. In several instances, they supplied the clue which led to the unsuspected owner of a number of very fine books. More often, however, it was found that volumes have passed from the auction table into the possession of owners who have comparatively few books and in a surprising number of cases apparently no abiding or serious interest in the particular volume. The data gathered for the Census, incidental to the verification of reported titles, suggests that a systematic search of American auction catalogues would supply a good many hundred entries of fifteenth century books which cannot be identified with any of the copies registered. Inasmuch as the number of these that have changed hands through the auction rooms must be less than the number purchased during the past hundred years from foreign booksellers' catalogues, or brought home as souvenirs of European travel, it is easy to see how advantageous it will be to go on with the work of which this Census is the first-fruits, so as to maintain some continuing record of the whereabouts of these books for the use of American students. The institution which undertakes to do this as a part of its regular service, will add more to its own equipment and reputation, at less outlay, than can be secured in any other way known to the writer.
